

Uncle Ted and Carson Use Transit To Go Fishing

"Guess what, Abby, I am going fishing with Uncle Ted," said Carson. "He is taking me camping near the lake where I will catch my own fish."

Uncle Ted told me that we will be riding transit to get to the lake."

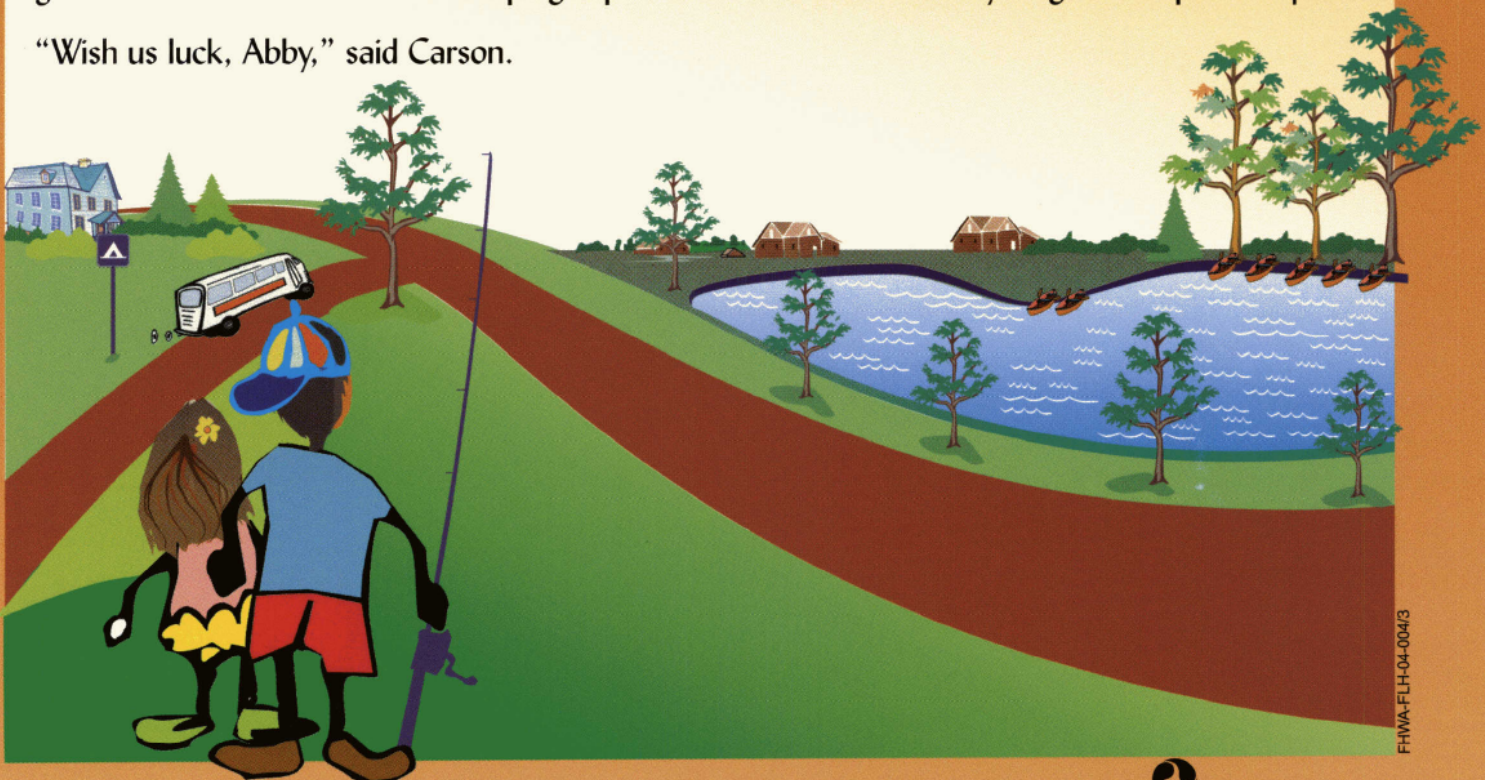

"What's transit?" asked Abby.

"Uncle Ted told me that transit is anything two or more people use to get from here to there," answered Carson. "Uncle Ted and I will be riding on a transit bus to the lake. The transit bus will let Uncle Ted and me store our fishing poles and camping bags on the bus. We will stop along the village roads and pick other people up who need rides, too!"

"I'm going to ask Uncle Ted if my friend Bobby can come with us," said Carson. "He is a year older than me and he lives in the next town. I know the transit bus will stop there so Bobby can ride along with us on transit, too."

"Bobby's mother uses the same transit bus to go to the grocery store twice a week. She will buy groceries for us to take on the camping trip. Transit is a wonderful way to get from place to place."

"Wish us luck, Abby," said Carson.

FHWA-FLH-04-004/3

U.S. Department of Transportation
Federal Highway Administration

